The Editor's Column

You Have a Date On Tuesday

How many people are going to vote No on the school bonds Tuesday, we do not know. Very few have expressed their disapproval of the bonds to us. But this much you can be sure of. Every No vote will be cast, whereas there will be a good many potential Yes voters who will say, "Oh, heavens, nobody would vote against the school bonds. Why should I bother to vote. They're sure to pass."

Are they indeed! Consider. It takes two-thirds of the vote to pass a bond issue, not a bare majority. Consider, also, though every organization in town, including the city government itself, has gone on record officially as being in favor of the bonds, there may be a whopping big proportion of the members of each of these groups which intends to vote No, but isn't going to get up in meeting and say so, to be branded tight-wads, reactionaries, and child haters!

We hope that some of the No votes change their minds before election day. We want the bonds to pass and here is our reason:

Though we do not believe that the school population will increase in the alarming way Kump and Company have pictured it in their survey, we do believe that it will increase appreciably — and the present school plants do not house even the current school population adequately. More class rooms are needed, both elementary and high school.

Whether or not you approve of the swimming pool recreation center project, you should not let it influence your vote on the bonds. It cannot be built for several years. The government will not release scarce materials for such purposes. The class rooms will be built first. As for the other items—

Did you read the legal notice of election run in The Pine Cone legal section a month ago announcing a bond election to enable the board to purchase sites and erect school buildings? Did it say what school buildings? The board is not legally bound to follow any specific building plan. So if there are features in the plan you do not like, do not express your disapproval by a No vote, but help pass the bonds, and then when the time comes, and there will be ample time before any construction starts on anything, register your protest. The board is amenable to reason.

And please, you who want the recreation center and pool more than anything else, and there are a lot of you, do not go around gnashing your teeth at The Pine Cone, saying we're against the swimming pool and recreation center. We have made no such statement. We simply used them as an example. We might have picked any other unit in the school board's list of improvements. It is impossible that every item in such a list should be pleasing to everybody. Nor is it necessary that it should

Highlands Liquor License Transfer Hearing Monday

Hearing on the protests on the transfer of the Highlands Inn liquor license from E. H. Tickle to the new owners, Highlands Inn Incorporated, has been set for Monday, February 3, at 2 p. m., in the court house in Salinas.

A delegation of Highlands residents are planning to attend the hearing to reiterate their objections to the transfer.

The hearing is the result of protests by letter and petition lodged with the State Board several months ago.

GOP Rejuvenated To Sponsor Talk By Labor Leader

Labor's Point of View on Pending Legislation Before Congress, regarded currently as America's most vital problem, will be the subject of an address to be given by C. J. "Neil" Haggerty of San Francisco, executive secretary of the California Federation of Labor, in the Pacific Grove High School Auditorium at 8 p. m., February 13, under the auspices of Republicans Rejuvenated of Monterey County.

This is one of a series of talks to be given under the auspices of the Republican organization by important leaders on subjects that are important to every American.

"We feel that we are fortunate in procuring such an outstanding labor leader who for many years has been recognized as spokesman for labor throughout California and the west," said Howard Veit, chairman of the board of directors of Republicans Rejuvenated. "He knows the national labor picture as it effects every citizen, better than any other man we know of. He is a splendid speaker and his message is of much importance because it concerns every American, that it should not be missed."

Haggerty was appointed by President Truman as a member representing the workers of the United States at the meeting of the Building, Civil Engineering and Public Works Committee of the International Labor Organization held in Brussels, Belgium, November, 1946, for the study of world labor problems.

Following his address Mr. Haggerty will answer questions from the audience.

Henry J. Diez of Monterey will serve as chairman of the meeting.

The free tickets can be obtained at Republican Rejuvenated Headquarters, 467 Alvarado street in Monterey and will be mailed from there if applied for in person or by letter, at Staniford's Drug Store and the Carmel Drug Store.

NEED A RIDE TO THE POLLS?

The Get Out the Vote Committee, headed by Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, has arranged transportation for voters on School Bond Election Day, Tuesday, January 28. If you need a ride to the polls, phone 747-W on election day (not before) and a member of the committee will call for you.

Float The Bond Issue Now While Interest Is Cheap Urges Potter, "It's Sound Business—Good Sense"

Since he returned to Carmel from five years in Washington, D. C., Zenas L. Potter has been complaining of soaring prices and predicting a collapse that would do dire things to our economy. If he is right, building costs will be substantially lower a couple of years from now. It would be interesting to find out what he thinks of the plan of the School Board to issue $450,000 in bonds at this time.

True, he is interested in the schools, because he was chairman of the citizens committee that supported the last school bond issue, back in 1941. But building now, when costs are so high, might not appeal to him.

"You have a very good point," he said. "Building costs are higher now than they will be, in all probability, for the next ten years. When I first heard of the plans for the bond issue I was skeptical. The time to build would be when costs were low and artisans of the district needed work. But after I talked with School Board members I changed my mind. What the Board proposes is sound business judgment."

When I asked what it proposed, he said, "The plan is to go ahead now only with a North Side Primary School, for kindergarteners to fourth graders, and to buy a site, available at a reasonable price, for a North Side Primary School. The Board then will invest the remainder of the money in Government bonds and hold it until costs come down, or until some other individual need becomes urgent.

"Bonds can be floated now at probably 1½ percent interest. It is doubtful if they can be floated at such an advantageous rate within the next ten years. By borrowing at 1½ percent and reinvesting at 2½, the taxpayers will earn $1,000 a year on every $100,000 held, until the time comes to go ahead."

Mr. Potter then went on and related a personal experience. After the last war he bought a home in a suburban New York town, on which the mortgage ran out, after the price and financial collapse. To get it renewed he had to pay 6 percent interest and a $500 cash bonus. "Now," he said, "is the time to float bond issues. It is not the time to build more than is absolutely necessary."

Another advantage of the plan, Mr. Potter pointed out, is that if there is a collapse of prices there will be a letdown in building that will leave some Carmel artisans without work and Carmel contractors and building material dealers short of orders. Construction of needed school buildings at that time will help to keep Carmel prosperous, when less farsighted communities will be harder hit.

"The need for some buildings, of course, is immediate, and cannot wait. Because of overcrowding at Sunset School the eighth grade has been pushed out and sent up to the High School, to mix with wrong age groups. By building a North Side School for younger pupils, below the fifth grade, congestion at Sunset can be eased and the eighth grade can be moved back where it belongs."

Having served as chairman for the last bond drive, Zenas Potter was aware that steps taken then left important parts of the original

Coles Skip Again, Ahead of Mont. Co. Sheriff's Deputies

Arthur Cole and his wife, who skipped for southern California early this week when the Sheriff's office got out a warrant for their arrest on a felony charge for operating a stolen car ring on the Monterey Peninsula, skipped again, this time believed headed for the east. The Sheriff's office sent down two deputies Tuesday night to aid in the search, but when they got to Bakersfield, Cole and his wife had departed.

Authorities have definite information as to their whereabouts, however, and steps have been taken to apprehend them at their destination.

The Monterey County deputies recovered a considerable amount of stolen equipment at Bakersfield,

Godwin Names Board

Mayor Fred Godwin announced to The Pine Cone his final selection for members of the Carmel Planning Commission yesterday. They are:

Herbert Heron, P. A. McCreery (both former mayors of Carmel), Clara Kellogg, former Carmel City councilwoman, Florence Josselyn, member of the Harrison Memorial Library Board, Hurd Comstock, Donald Craig, city councilman, and Ernest Bixler, postmaster. The appointees have been residents of Carmel for many years, and have an understanding and appreciation of Carmel traditions and values.

Non-voting, ex-official members of the commission will be City Building Inspector Floyd Adams and City Clerk Peter Mawdsley.

Final reading of the empowering ordinance for the planning commission was given last week. It becomes effective in thirty days, so that the planning commission will hold its first session by the end of February. Awaiting it will be two

The Radio Division of the Monterey Peninsula Community Players had their first meeting Wednesday night at the Green Room and elected Ken Smith their president and Marjorie Cain secretary and treasurer. The group was organized by Kress Starkey, who has had a great deal of radio experience all over the country as writer, producer, and announcer. He will direct all the productions of the group.

The Radio Division will start casting for their first play next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at the Green Room, and Starkey hopes a lot of people turn up to try out. They are hoping to get a half hour every Saturday night at KDON. Original plays will be used as well as condensations of plays already produced. Anyone who writes radio scripts is invited to bring them around.

Parks Johnson and Warren Hull, Vox Pop Emcees, arrive tomorrow to start looking for people to interview on the broadcast January 28 at the First Theatre. The six peninsula people interviewed will be given presents following the show.

Although 100 tickets will be distributed by Paramount to local people, there won't be any tickets available to the general public. Those invited are going to have to show up in costume in order to carry out Paramount's idea of the glamorous tradition of old California, since they're going to prevue the new picture, California, starring Ray Milland, following the broadcast.

There hasn't been enough rain yet, and while townspeople are happy, the ranchers are really worried. Green grass came up here and there but over in the Salinas area frost turned it yellow, and down the coast the mountains aren't nearly so green as they usually are this time of year. If we don't get some storms soon, it will be a bad year for the cattle, and the fire hazard will be increased by the lack of water in soil and streams and the too early drying of grass.

Up in the Corral de Tierra region, the hills are still brown and the Carmel Valley has been having frost trouble.

KING CITY MUSTANGS PLAY CARMEL TONIGHT

With an undefeated lightweight team and a veteran heavyweight aggregation, the King City High School basketball squads will engage the Carmel Padres on the local court tonight. The lightweight game will start at 7 o'clock with the heavyweights taking the floor immediately after the lightweights are finished.

In 1947 league play the Mustang lightweights have defeated Pacific Grove and Gonzales, while the heavyweights have defeated Gonzales and lost to Pacific Grove. The varsity encounter looks to be a toss-up on the basis of comparative scores, which mean very little in basketball. King City has a complete starting team from their 1946 varsity and they gave all their opponents a rough evening last season. The lightweights must be a smooth outfit judging by the fine performance they gave at Pacific Grove.

PADRES DROP TWO CLOSE ONES AT PACIFIC GROVE

In two well-played basketball games, the Carmel High School lightweight and heavyweight teams came out on the short end of the score. The lightweights found a dismal first half too difficult to overcome and lost by a 22-17 count. The heavyweight fracas was closely contested during the complete game and was only decided on a last minute surge by the Breakers. At the beginning of the fourth quarter Carmel was in front, 19 to 18, with neither team able to pierce the other's defense until near the end of the quarter. A very good guard, Bob Toole, sneaked through the front line defense to dump in a crip which decided the issue and left the Breakers on the long end of a 26-23 score.

The lightweight game provided more action per minute than is usually found in six basketball games. The ball appeared to be white-hot and changed from team to team so fast that the spectators looked like a tennis gallery. At the end of the first quarter the two teams were deadlocked with a one to one count. Halftime found the Breaker Babes in front, 9 to 4, on the basis of two field goals thrown by Gasperson and Ichiuji. In the second half Carmel scored the same number of points as Pacific Grove but they had too great a deficit to make up and couldn't quite overhaul the Breakers. Bill Sapsis and Murrey Wight carried the scoring load for the Padres with 7 and 4 points respectively. For the first time this season Dick Gargiulo was bottled up and was blanked on field goals. Dick played a fine floor game, however, and was instrumental in setting up scoring plays.

Seeming to enjoy the role of underdog the Padre varsity played one of its better games and came within an ace of upsetting the pennant-bound Pacific Grove five. Mulholland, Templeman and Cross were all hitting from the floor and were ably abetted by good ball handling on the part of Winslow and Greenan. The tight man for man defense employed by the Padres kept the accurate shooting Breakers off balance for most of the encounter.

With a little more ball control the local prepsters could have pulled the season's prize upset. A few bad passes at crucial points in the game were capitalized on by the alert P. G. forwards and turned into quick baskets which meant the difference in the game.

Carmel lightweight players: Bob Barry, Dick Gargiulo, Ward Gilbert, Bob Morrisseau, Bill Sapsis, Dick Weer, and Murrey Wight.

PINE CONE FIVE WINS FIRST LEAGUE GAME

Showing improvement with each game played the Pine Cone cagers finally hit their stride and copped their initial victory in the Monterey Industrial League. The Monterey Nisei quintet provided the opposition and the game was closely contested from the first tip-off. Employing a fast break attack, the Nisei went out in front the first quarter, but superior height began to tell and the Pine Cone took the lead in the third quarter. With Garnero, Colletto and Sayers hitting for field goals the third quarter score read—Carmel Pine Cone 25, Monterey Nisei 23. At one time in the second half the Pine Cone enjoyed a nine point lead but the Nisei whittled it down to three points before the end of the game. Final score Pine Cone 36, Nisei 33.

Sparked by their initial victory the Pine Cone team is eagerly awaiting the encounter with the Carmel Legion next Thursday. Rivals from all standpoints these two teams should put on as hot a basketball game as will be seen on the Peninsula this season. Most of the players on both teams were stars on local high school fives.

Pine Cone lineup: Gene Ricketts, Chet Garnero, Rip Belvail, Bert Colletto, Jim Muscutt, Bob Hendricks, Bob Bell, and Bob Sayers.

GORDY MIYAMOTO BLANKS P. G. MERCHANTS, 3 TO 0

Before an enthusiastic gathering of baseball fans the Carmel Legion played a fine brand of ball to easily defeat the Merchants from Pacific Grove. Gordy Miyamoto was in superb form letting the opposition down with 3 hits while his teammates were collecting 8 blows off Hastie, P. G. hurler. Brother Ky supplied the lethal punch for the local lads when he rammed out a screaming triple to drive in what proved to be the winning run. Carmel scored two additional runs on Merchant miscues, but with Gordy holding the enemy batters helpless one run was enough to win.

Pacific Grove threatened to score in the second inning but some weird base running on an attempted squeeze play allowed Rip Belvail to nip the runner at the plate.

Last Sunday's game completed the Winter League Schedule but there are several games yet to be played before an official champion can be declared. Salinas Junior College plays P. G. Merchants next Sunday afternoon in a game which could decide the second half pennant. If J. C. wins they are champs but if P. G. wins there will be a three way tie among Salinas, Carmel, and P. G. Carmel and the Junior College tied for the first half flag so the season could well run into April or May. At any event Carmel will be represented in the play-off games.

Legion lineup: Gordy Miyamoto, Rip Belvail, Jim Hale, Jim Kelsey, Ky Miyamoto, Jay Huffman, Vic Marconi, John Younkin, Archie Miyamoto, Bill Askew, and Kelly Taylor.

An Orchestra Is Born

BY F. V. RANDOL

The scene changes! Fourteen years! A new generation! The war is over! A high school has been built! Then comes a far cry from musically minded Carmelites, "Let's start a symphony orchestra. We had a honey of an organization fourteen years ago."

One Monday night a few weeks ago, ten curious and dubious symphony lovers arrived at the high school auditorium. Kilroy was there! To the amazement of the audience of ten, there were found sixty musically minded young men and women, and even some oldsters. Imagine! Sixty! There were three bassoons, slide trombones galore, French horns, three flutes (I'm glad I left mine at home.) Almost everything was there, except! Except what? I am not going to say Michael Penha. That happened fourteen years ago.

On the podium stood a young, peppery and ambitious young fellow. He had personality plus. This black haired enthusiast should chase everyone else off the podium. The time is not ripe to attempt the use of two conductors. To do this will result in confusion.

If the personnel of this orchestra will practice seriously, their enthusiastic young conductor will take them places.

The village of Carmel would be wise in taking some Monday night off to go up the hill to the high school and become acquainted with Conductor Leon Minear and his new symphony. Certainly it is worth while. A few months from now there will be a sign out "Standing room only." Fanny Parker assures us all that now we will have comfortable chairs in which to relax.

Carmelites! Listen! Let us all go up the hill and give this fine group a cheer. You will certainly get a big surprise if you like music. I have attended all rehearsals. Last Monday night was the third. Mind you, eighty-one musicians are now in this orchestra! Can you imagine that?

Fourteen years ago we had an orchestra of twenty-eight musicians and a piccolo player. (And I played the piccolo!) Everyone of us thought we had the New York Philharmonic beaten a mile. After all we were good. There was no question about that. Three hundred visitors at each Sunday night rehearsal was the regular thing. And how the celebrities turned out en masse! There were Lincoln Steffens, Paul Dougherty, and Henry Dickenson, who, after all was the daddy of the whole thing. I could go on and on. At a concert one night I observed in the audience the now concert master of the New York Philharmonic, Michael Piastro. Kilroy was not there! That was fourteen years ago. At the concert we played Tschaikowski's Waltz of the Flowers from the Nutcracker Suite. A delightful lady in blue came dashing up to Penha and then throwing her arms around him, she cried out, "My Gawd! You just done fine! I did love your "Touch-Cows-keys Flower Song." Whereupon "Michael Penha got up and slowly walked away!"

Incidentally, ladies and gentlemen, Conductor Leon Minear needs seven or eight more violin players. If you happen to know anyone that can really tickle the cat gut send them up the hill next Monday night. But be sure, by all means that you go yourself. You will be glad of the adventure and the musicians will appreciate your attendance.

Ernest Bixler Puts Out Wishing Wells For March of Dimes

Ernest Bixler, postmaster, has put out the Wishing Wells for the March of Dimes campaign all over town this week and hopes that a lot of people will contribute to the polio fund. Part of the money collected in the March of Dimes is assistance to local victims of poliomyelitis; the rest goes to Warm Springs for research purposes.

A number of children stricken with polio in this county have been aided by the March of Dimes fund. Some have been sent to the Children's Hospital in San Francisco for post-treatment. Equipment such as braces has been bought, and the county is hoping that enough money will be collected so that they can equip a special polio room at the County Hospital in Salinas. Anyone who wants to make donations directly, can go to Ernest Bixler at the Carmel post office.

The campaign will continue until the end of the month.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Saturday was the birthday of Jesse Draper who lives down the coast, and it was celebrated with a family dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Draper at Del Monte Lodge.

Maggie Teyte, England's greatest soprano, will sing at Sunset Auditorium, February 5, in the third of the Carmel Music Society's series for this season.

She is known not only for her brilliantly controlled voice, powerful and clear in its high tones, with deep wood-wind timbre in its middle register, but also for her enchanting personality. Her favorite roles in opera were in "Pelleas et Melisande," "Marriage of Figaro," "La Boheme," and Massenet's "Cendrillon." Since she abandoned the operatic stage, Maggie Teyte has made a special career for herself in French music, particularly French songs of the nineteenth century. In 1932 she became one of the principal artists on the British Broadcasting System, and shortly after began her phonograph recordings with an album of Debussy songs. All of her records are prized by collectors. Radio and phonograph have created for her new audiences that are eager to greet her in person.

Float The Bond Issue Now While Interest Is Cheap, Urges Potter

high school plan uncompleted. "This bond issue will enable the Board, when conditions are right, to finish the original plan, save for the auditorium," he said. "It will provide additional class rooms, a more adequate library, and a science department that can operate without the unhappy handicap of having physics, chemistry and biology students all using the same facilities, which greatly limits opportunity for experiments and collections of specimens. It will also provide a place where music students can practice without bothering other students, and a place where students in arts and crafts can work without existing handicaps. Carmel is an art center. It is a shame to have students in the arts handicapped as they are at present, up at the high school. Finally, the plan will provide a recreation center, with a swimming pool, that can serve the whole community summers and at other times when not needed for the students.

"You think that the School Board showed good business judgment in asking for issuance of the bonds now, and planning construction when costs are right?" he was asked.

"I most certainly do," Mr. Potter stated. "Issuing bonds when interest rates are low and construcing buildings when costs are low is the soundest kind of business judgment for the taxpayers."

"But your daughters are all grown up. Why do you favor the bond issue?"

"Yes, my girls have all grown up," Zenas Potter said. "But Carmel High School did a lot for my daughter Connie, when she was there. For that I am grateful. And one doesn't stop liking boys and girls just because his are grown up. Carmel owes it to the boys and girls now in its schools, and those that will attend them in the future, to maintain a school plant in keeping with the community and the kind of people who live here. Few of us have extravagant homes; but we are set up to get a lot out of life. We want schools that will give a lot to our boys and girls. I would rather economize on meals and clothes than on boys and girls. I am sure I am not alone in this."

Getting Around The Peninsula

tional Forest, Pfeiffer Beach has always been a part of the Los Padres National Forest, but Alvin Dani's land lies between the beach and the State Highway, so it has been impossible to get to it without crossing Dani property.

Dani has allowed people to go down to the beach but has charged a fee for using his road and crossing his land.

"The beach is one of our priority recreational projects," Fwartz said, "But first we're going to have to buy a right-of-way from Dani, construct a road, and appropriate money for the purpose. This will take time, and it may not work out this year."

The road, he explained, will follow more or less the same route as the present Dani road, but may take another turn towards the mouth of the canyon.

"However, the project will be settled this year," Fwartz stressed, "And we're going ahead with definite plans for barbecue pits, picnic tables and a regular campground."

Pfeiffer Beach, named for early pioneers Michael and Barbara Pfeiffer, used to be one of the landing places for supply ships from San Francisco before the coast road was built, and, it is rumored, was also used by smugglers from time to time. Considered the most beautiful on the coast by the few people who have accidentally strayed down the dirt road which winds through two or three miles of sycamores and redwoods before it reaches the Dani farmhouse and the sea, Pfeiffer Beach has a wide river mouth, dazzling white sand, strangely shaped rocks out in the tide line which resemble fortresses with cave windows cutting through, and a long, dizzy, sometimes very windy expanse of beach to north and south along the foot of the precipitous cliffs.

Very few people have ever noticed the road forking off to the right of Big Sur, however, and the beach has never been advertised. Most people who have known about the beach have been under the impression that it belonged to Alvin Dani.

Tuck Box Sold, Jack-Jill Bought In All English Deal

Mrs. Nancy Brumbridge and Mrs. Lorna Watson, owners of the Tuck Box, English tea room on Dolores street, have sold out to Mr. and Mrs. John Granfield of Manhattan Beach, California, who plan to take over sometime in February. Simultaneously, Mrs. Brumbridge and Mrs. Watson purchased the Jack and Jill shop in the Seven Arts Court from Mrs. Elsie Stewart Vanderlip, who has operated the shop for eleven years. The Jack and Jill will re-open on February 7.

On a warm day last summer, Mr. and Mrs. Granfield wandered into the Tuck Box for tea and as they were paying their check, said to Mrs. Brumbridge, "Aren't you English?"

"Yes," she acknowledged.

"What part of England do you come from?"

"From Houndslow in Middlesex."

"Why, so do we," the Granfields exclaimed. It turned out they had all gone to the same school and knew the same people.

"If you ever want to sell the Tuck Box," the Granfields said as they left, "We'll buy it."

After arranging to purchase the Jack and Jill shop from Mrs. Vanderlip, who also is English, Mrs. Brumbridge and Mrs. Watson decided to sell.

"The Granfields plan to carry on just the same as we've done," Mrs. Watson said, "and I hear Mrs. Granfield is a better cook than I am."

While Colonel Roy Hillyer was down in Nashville, Tennessee, he dropped in at the Hermitage Hotel. There he saw a painting of a group of Union and Confederate soldiers swapping coffee and tobacco and this reminded him of stories his three grandfathers—all Civil War veterans—used to tell him when he was a little boy about trades between Union and Confederate soldiers who slipped through the lines at night.

"They were mortal enemies in the daytime and friends at night," as Col. Hillyer's three grandfathers put it.

Col. Hillyer, immediately desiring to possess the painting, went to see the manager of the Hermitage Hotel.

The manager said he didn't have any paintings to sell. "Aren't you enough of a damned Yankee to know that stuff isn't coffee?" the manager added, "It's sweet tobacco being traded for green tobacco."

Col. Hillyer resented being called a damned Yankee. "Why I had as many people on the Confederate side as on the Union side," he replied indignantly. "And furthermore my idea of a damned Yankee is somebody who comes from New England, not from Kansas."

This spirited retort so impressed the manager that he pressed a button, called for a roll of prints, gave them all to Col. Hillyer, refusing to accept a penny.

Gilbert Gaul was the artist, and the originals are at Nashville, Tennessee.

Richard Lofton's One Man Show

BY LEE RANDOLPH

Richard Lofton is currently exhibiting a collection of nineteen recent works at the Carmel Art Association Galleries, following his successful one-man show at the Lucien Labaudt gallery in San Francisco. This talented young painter already demonstrates a distinctive personal expression and technical mastery of the medium which is highly impressive.

Without being in the accepted sense an abstractionist, Richard Lofton is a challenging painter, controversial only in the boldness and penetration with which he presents his material.

He was born in South Carolina near Charleston and his school days were spent at the Citadel Military College of his native state. Like all artists the painter turns naturally to subjects he knows and which he can use with conviction and authority, and so the spring board of his inspiration in his large oil paintings is the life of the Gullah Negroes of Carolina.

His use of color, in rich low toned harmonies, powerful and independent, creates in the mind a tension that is emotionally satisfying even to those who have had no contact with its origin. This color is used in large and sometimes, to the uninitiated, disconcerting masses, but the balance of his composition is never lost. I like his fine sequence of blues richly complimented by the warm tones rising to intense accents of yellows and reds. Finally, however, it is the realization of the plastic quality and organization of form and space that gives the large measure of authority and interest in Mr. Lofton's painting.

But there are several other very different phases of the painter's work included in this engaging show.

First, I would mention, the highly sensitive landscapes of the California scene, local subjects of rocks and trees, such as we love about Carmel, where fortunately, I believe, after four years in the army during the war, he has established his home and studio. This group of small paintings in oil and water color is deftly handled, with unified design, brilliantly and solidly felt.

Also, Ricahrd Lofton is a portrait painter to be reckoned with. Here are several small portrait heads of real distinction. They have that quality, too often lacking in superficial photographic type of portraiture, of living structure and integrated color. Mr. Lofton's portraits will always be conceived in terms of art as well as portrayals of character and personality.

Finally I would like to quote Alfred Frankenstein, the art critic of the San Francisco Chronicle, writing on November 18 about this group of paintings while they were on exhibition at the Labaudt Gallery. Mr. Frankenstein says, "These oils are monumental pieces, but their monumentality does not preclude their possessing a strong human appeal. . . . Lofton's oils move in a tempo maestoso and are scored for 'cellos and horns. His water colors on the other hand, are quick shattery fugitive notations for piccolo and triangle. They may be the scherzo in the Loftonian symphony, but there is such a thing as a serious scherzo too, and these are it."

VOTE 'YES' for School Bonds
NEXT TUESDAY
at SUNSET SCHOOL
7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

THE NEED

School accommodations are inadequate and growing more so.

Due to overcrowding at Sunset School the 8th grade is at the high school . . . with the wrong age group.

And at Sunset each new class is bigger than the one before There are 50% more first than fourth grade pupils! Overcrowding will grow progressively worse until relieved.

At the High School the original plan needs to be completed—for present and future needs.

What We Will Get

NORTH SIDE SCHOOL — Kindergarten to 4th grade A NEW Primary School

SOUTH SIDE SCHOOL — Kindergarten to 4th grade A NEW Primary School

SUNSET SCHOOL — Reserved for 5th to 8th grades . . . 8th grade moved from High School. . . . Kindergarten to 4th grades moved to new North and South Side Schools.

HIGH SCHOOL — Original plan completed —save for auditorium.

THE COST $450,000. To the average home owner that is only $4.50 a year— the cost of taking the family out to dinner. . . . Due to retirement of other bonds, total bond taxes even after this issue, will be less per $100 of valuation than for the last 9 years.

If approved the bonds will be issued now, while interest charges are around 1½ percent. But only immediately essential building will be done NOW. Remaining funds will be invested in U. S. Government Bonds AT A PROFIT (2½%) and held until costs are right or until other urgent needs develop.

News in the Girls league is the election of officers. Teddy Greene was elected president, Zoe Beyma, vice-president, Benita Updike, secretary, and Betty Goulart, treasurer.

The Mixed Chorus Club has also elected its officers, who are Basil Allaire, president; Blair McDonald, vice-president, and Margaret Rigdon, secretary.

The freshmen are giving an after-the-game dance tonight. Class President Steve Whitaker, Ann Whitaker and Peter Berg form the general committee for the dance; more than twenty other freshmen are working on some part of it.

An interesting program is being started on KDON next Saturday at 10:30 a. m. Called "Quiz of the Schools," it will be a quiz program of general information. There will be six different participants each Saturday, two each from Pacific Grove, Monterey, and Carmel High Schools. At the end of the first six weeks, the winners of each week's program will compete, so that finally one person from the several schools will emerge victorious.

Chosen from Carmel were Joan Daniels, Steve Whitaker, and Graham Grande of the freshman class; Kathie von Meier, Anne Fratessa and Dick Gargiulo from the sophomore; Peggy Riker, Rod Dewar and John Blinks from the junior, and Sue Dekker, Mary Gregory and Roger Byers from the senior class.

Those who seek in its stillness to grow more conscious of God's presence do not go unrewarded.

Sunday services at eight and eleven a.m. The Chapel is close to Hotel Del Monte.

PRIZE WINNING ESSAYS

"SAFETY BONDS"

Have you ever walked from Carmel Woods to Sunset School? Well, it's a long walk for small children, and there are lots of them who live in the Woods. When I was in the fourth grade, my sister and brother were in the second grade, and we walked to school by way of Serra and San Carlos. We walked on the left side of the road because it is considered safer, but there is no pathway on either side. There are some narrow places in the road where there is no room for people when two automobiles pass each other. When this happened, we had to flatten ourselves against the hillside and hope that the drivers saw us. On foggy days some of the automobiles skidded and bounced around the curves. That gave me a queer feeling too.

I'm in the sixth grade now so I do not mind the walk, but I hope that the children in the primary grades who live in Carmel Woods will soon have a school closer to their homes. We hear people say that the real wealth of a community is its children. I used to think about that when I walked down Serra and San Carlos to school. Now I hope that the people of Carmel will think about it and vote "yes" on the school bonds.

—Carolyn Fratessa, 6th Grade.

A Dream or a Reality?

With all this talk about what the passing of the Bond Issue will do for Carmel Schools in the future, there isn't a one of us at Carmel High who hasn't wished he were going to school here ten years from now. When Mr. Harris told us of all the improvements that were to be made, each of us visualized arriving the next day and seeing this Utopian school spread out before us.

To each of us this improved school would mean something special: to the musician, a new music building with separate practice rooms; to the scientist, room to set up experiments in chemistry or physics and to build up collections in biology in the science unit; to the artist, an arts and crafts unit where specialized work like clay modeling and leathercraft can be carried on; to every student, an enlarged library including educational movies; to all of us, both high school students and adults in the Carmel District, a recreation center with rifle range ,recreation room, ping pong tables, a swimming pool, and a diving pool.

These are only some of the improvements; many more are planned for the Carmel School District. This would cost the average person only $4.50 a year. With Carmel rapidly growing, we must expand and improve our schools. Let us make this dream come true by voting "Yes" for School Bonds!

—Ginger Klein, High School.

An Investment in the Future—School Bonds

There are two ways of looking at school bonds: from the point of view of benefit to the community and from the point of view of benefit to the individual. School bonds are insurances—life, fire, health, and safety. The average man thinks nothing of spending three hundred and fifty dollars a year for life insurance to insure benefits to his own family. Yet school bonds, an insurance for a successful community, will cost this same man only four dollars and fifty cents a year and will insure benefits for himself and the community at large.

The conditions existing in Carmel schools must be well known by now: general overcrowding at Sunset; lack of science, arts and crafts, music, and library space, besides a need for recreational facilities at Carmel High School. The passing of school bonds will not only aid this generation of school children, but the children of the estimated seventy-five hundred population Carmel will have by 1955.

So the voters of Carmel, who want present as well as future returns for their money, will vote for school bonds; an investment in their own children and the children of the future Carmel.

—Linda Bain, 8th Grade.

School Bond Issue

On January 28 the people of Carmel will have the honor and privilege of voting for a bond issue of $450,000 to improve school facilities in this rapidly growing community.

Increased population necessitates adequate school buildings. A comprehensive survey of present and prospective school-age children in this area has been made and presented to the public. These figures present a problem which Carmel, as a progressive community, will have to solve intelligently.

Carmel is known the world over as a cultural nucleus. Let's maintain this high standard of respect of which we are so proud, by promoting adequate schools to meet our present and future needs.

To make this possible, it is the duty of every eligible voter of the Carmel Unified School District to go to the polls January 28, the last Tuesday in January, and vote.

There is no investment which pays larger dividends than investments made for education. Remember ,the children of today are the leaders of tomorrow. Come on—all of us—talk school bonds day and night until election day. When this important date arrives—go to the polls—take your neighbor—and vote "YES" on the School Bond Issue.

—Joy Westcott, High School.

It takes a lot of INGENUITY ENGINEERING to help meet Service Demands

We put up more miles of new electric lines in 1946 than in any previous year. We are ditching-in more pipe for new gas customers than we have ever done before. But we are not yet caught up with increased demands for gas and electric service to all customers.

● Shortage of Equipment
It requires 24 to 36 months to get delivery of essential transformers for substations and power lines. We are getting only a part of the gas pipe we need.

● Shortage of Transportation
Autos and trucks of every type needed to get men and materials on the job are as difficult to get as passenger cars.

● Shortage of Labor
The company is operating schools to train repairmen and line construction personnel. We need many more linemen.

It takes a lot of Ingenuity Engineering to maintain a dependable degree of service to our many gas and electric customers. At Eureka, for instance, we have converted half a wrecked ship into a steam-electric generating plant. We rebuild, salvage and scour the market for needed material new or used. During this new year of 1947 we hope a lot of needed items will become more plentiful for all of us.

Have You Read . . . ?

BY R. ELLIS ROBERTS

Come Home, Traveller, by Claude Kinnoull, Doubleday, 1947, $2.75.

The first thing to be said of Claude Kinnoull's haunting and memorable book is that it is one of the richest, most carefully observed and finely reasoned novels I have read for years. It has few of the faults that mark most first novels. It has self-control; in style and presentation it is reckless prodigality of ornament, sentiment or emotion, which so often characterizes first novels. At times the book reminded me of Joseph Conrad's work; Lady Kinnoull has the same delicate feeling for honour, the same integrity in her portraiture which were evident in the Anglo-Polish author; but readers of French fiction will find a nearer analogy in the work of Francois Mauriac, or even of Julian Green, though Lady Kinnoull is free from the sinister, heavily-charged atmosphere of that author. Even the dreariest, most sordid of her Parisian interiors have windows; and neither she nor her people indulge in any morose delectation in the wickedness which at times occludes them. They suffer, her people, monstrously, they are hurt, they wound themselves, they are dearly and maddeningly human; but they never take an ultimate delight in despair.

When Louise comes from Equatorial Africa, after six years of marriage, six years in which she has been "incredibly happy," she has come for her child and Rene's to be born in Paris. She has not wanted the child. She does not want it now, and she resents her husband's delight in the expected birth. Before she goes to Paris she visits Suzanne at her home, Cogolou in Provence. There, in consequence of a fall, with no doctor near and for midwife Suzanne's old nurse Dolores, the baby is born—a misshapen idiot. In that scene the author first shows her stature as a writer: she has a rare gift of gravity, a dignity which, for me, redeems her most terrible scenes from the mere nerve-titillating horror which would be all some novelists could achieve.

From the birth of Edouard the story goes on with a strict justice. The larger part of it is told in the thoughts of Louise and Suzanne, separated again after the baby's birth, moving in parallel lines as far apart, as close as are natural happiness and natural misery, on lines which only a power not natural can bring together again. Suzanne, writing her Provencal stories, living close to nature, friendly with the farmers and wine-growers, develops as simply, and at the last as miraculously as does the grape itself. Louise, creature of impulse, terrified, with a wild but not steadfast courage, suffers and sins in Paris, has her times of gaiety, her longer, more frequent, more frequently recurrent times of poverty and degradation. And all the time she has the anxiety, the unending distress, the bitter consolation of her son. Not the least of Lady Kinnoull's achievements is that she has made Louise a sympathetic creature. The woman is a coward, a liar, a cheat; she easily infatuates men who find in her some dream of ageless beauty. The old fortune-teller, Antonia, whom she charms, too, the shrewd and careful Antonia, tells her she is proud and stubborn and passionate.

"You walk straight on without turning to take your bearings, or pausing to reflect. . . . Most of the lives I see have been messed up in some way or other by outside circumstances. In your case, it's you who did the messing."

The secret of Louise's persistent charm is that she neither pities nor excuses herself—Suzanne, a far finer character, presented with equal justice, has moments when she does both.

It is difficult to give an adequate idea of the variety of Come Home, Traveller. Scene follows memorable scene; and the lesser characters are drawn with unfailing precision. The people, the lovely land of Provence, the grimy streets of a Paris few visitors see are all observed and recorded with a painter's touch—they are vivid, sharp in outline, lovely or ruthless in color. And this variety and richness of setting are background for notable men and women. Lady Kinnoull succeeds as well with her chief men, Gerard and Rene, as with the two women; and her bravura piece of Alexandre, the painter with whom Louise has four comparatively carefree years, is a triumph. Perhaps it is a fault in the book that in the story of Gerard's marriage to the immature Cecile, the author has introduced a theme which, by its own interest and excitement, would make a separate novel; but we could ill spare the skill with which this episode is at the end turned to serve the story of Louise.

They who read Come Home, Traveller as a novel of pity, of man's search for truth and constancy will find it, on that level, a gripping and unusual story: but to read it only on that level will be to miss its most rewarding quality. There is art, great art, though never the greatest, where the work means exactly what it says, neither more nor less. But, especially in literature, there is art in which the real quality is implicit, a thing of overtones. An art where the words are overcharged, carry more than their plain meaning, sometimes more than the author is aware of. This effect is sometimes a matter of style, as in certain lines of Virgil or, to take minor poetry, of Edgar Allen Poe, of Verlaine. Sometimes, it also depends on the artist's myth, as in William Blake or Robinson Jeffers, or the later W. B. Yeats. I suppose the English novel which has most of this overcharged character is Wuthering Heights; and it is evident in much of the work of Herman Melville, of D. H. Lawrence, of William Faulkner, of Mary Butts, of Djuna Barnes, of Carson McCullers. It is present in Come Home, Traveller, and its vehicle is Edourad, the idiot child. The theme of the story, never stated by the author, only once or twice expressed by the Benedictine, Dom Felicien, is the same as the theme of The Hound of Heaven—God's persistent chase of the soul of man. Lady Kinnoull avoids all extravagance of language; her style is simple, and has none of the exuberance of Emily Bronte's or Herman Melville's: it is a cool, reticent style. And the reader content with the story as it stands, may miss the implications of Edouard's part in the book. Suzanne comes home through regular ways, though there, as always, is a mystical guide and, as there often is, a sudden illumination at journey's end: For Louise remains a more terrible way, and her pursuer, her guide is her son whom she has tried to destroy, whom she serves at the sacrifice of decency, of virtue, of life itself. Edouard, the undesired, the undesirable, Edouard without form of comeliness, Edouard is used, and blessed in that service, to bring the traveller home. Come Home, Traveller carries for the reader an implication far beyond the pity and terror of the story itself. As I laid the book down, the words of the wise woman of Tekoah were ringing in my ears . . . "Neither doth God respect any person; yet doth he devise means, that his banished be not expelled from him."

LOMBARDY POPLARS

Thinned by the wind and burned translucent
Candle-clear they shine,
Row by row where the hill is altar
Marking the field's pure line;
Lighting the land with lofty tapers,
Pillars of slender gold,
Bearing the sky serene above them
Guarding the light they hold.

Leaf by leaf when the prayers of summer,
Shriven of song and sound,
Lie like a garment fallen, golden,
Cast on the grassless ground,
Thin high boughs with their crown of twilight
Wait at the winter's door,
Holding intoned in leaf-quenched silence
More than their prayers implore.

—DANIEL HAWTHORNE

POPPIES

The poppies strut like yellow cocks,
Feeding in wild clover,
They spread in coveys and in flocks
When spring rains are over.

Their coats are flamed with golden dye,
Gold worn by none other,
The pride, the apple of the eye
Of April, their mother.

In meadow, pasture and in wood,
When their crests are burning,
They share alone their interlude,
They have had their morning.

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT

PATHETIC FALLACY

He thinks he sees a paradigm in trees
Deep rooted in the earth and evergreen
Graceful in the air's warm four-quartered breeze
But many-muscled when the wind is keen
And always gluttonous of sun, to seem
Not so nocturnal as the lives of men
Who trade the daily gloom of roof and beam
When gaudy neon night has come again.
He thinks, moreover, that men miss the mark
Who see pathetic fallacy with eyes
That can so falsify the day and dark.
A tree, perhaps, is not a pack of lies.

Books To Help You Sketch

BY FERDINAND W. HAASIS

"—But how do I start?" A fair enough question: the serious beginner in sketching has embarked upon his project because he wishes to portray more or less faithfully some of the interesting things he sees in the marvelous world about him. How to get the desired effects presents a real problem, however. Of course he could flounder around endlessly and at length, perhaps, come up with a method of working, but by then the mere drudgery is all too apt to have dulled the first fine enthusiasm, even killing the desire and thus depriving the novice of the real fun awaiting his efforts if well-directed. There is nothing gained by each new worker's attempting to explore anew the whole possible field of graphic representation. Mostly his time for the work is limited and he wants to get all he can out of it.

If You Can See The Good In People . . .

Why we are as we are and how we got that way, is the way William Kidwell stated the subject of his talk for the League of Women Voters public meeting last Friday evening at All Saints' parish house. Mr. Kidwell specialized in psychology and mental hygiene and served the Army in personnel and as classification director during the last war after a number of years in secondary educational work in Oregon. The importance of mental hygiene to successful living is beginning to be recognized not only by educators but by state officials, medical men, and probation officers as well.

Mr. Kidwell gave an every-day definition of good mental health as good common sense without any continued overindulgence. More scientifically, it is the adjustment of the individual to himself and to the world at large with maximum effectiveness, maximum satisfaction and maximum cheerfulness. "If you see the good in people," quoted the speaker, "the bad will slough off." This is especially true in a parent's relation to his child, or a teacher-pupil relation. Getting along with other people with cheerfulness and good nature indicates good mental hygiene. Facing the realities of life, admitting bad conditions that exist form another phase of mental health. If one can accept the world 'as is" and still be happy, and do one's part in improving conditions, then he is well adjusted. Only when a person faces facts can he act wisely. But a great many persons, especially children and young people, need help in attaining this stage.

A National Committee for Mental Hygiene was organized some years ago by Clifford Beers, the author of "The Mind that Found Itself," an account of his own experiences in a hospital for the insane after a severe mental breakdown, and his successful struggle back to a normal, healthy condition. He recognized the need for improved methods of treatment of the insane, and, almost more important, of proper mental guidance for children and for mental weaklings to help them stay in the ranks of normal human beings. Purpose of this society includes four lines of activity. First is to aid the mentally deficient to make a living by finding the lines of work which they are capable of doing. The Mental Hygiene Society carries on this work.

Child guidance is another purpose of the group. But this requires professionally trained persons who understand the influence of environment and human relations upon the child, and the training of psychiatrists. Public health is the fourth line emphasized by those who would promote mental health. The Mental Hygiene Society of Northern California is publicizing the need for attention to mental hygiene and its benefits to the public. Mental hospitals are greatly overcrowded and understaffed, and are, in fact, little more than detention places or dormitories and mess halls. The personnel is largely untrained, so that little can be done to rehabilitate the persons sent to the institutions. They need more funds, more buildings, trained attendants, and more professional personnel, and lobbyists to get these things through the legislature.

Much can be done in child guidance in the schools to forestall development of mental abnormalities, with trained psychiatrists working with the teachers, who can discover personality weaknesses down in kindergarten and through the grades carry on training to develop healthy normal attitudes. Mr. Kidwell emphasized the importance of showing parental affection for the child, especially when the child must be punished in some way. The feeling of insecurity brought by the punishment—necessary though it is—must be banished in order to maintain the child's sense of belonging. Similarly adolescents, trying to develop independence and "to grow up," must be assisted in making wider adjustments and gradually freed from childhood restraints. The speaker believes that a psychology course on a level with young persons' ability should be in the high school curriculum.

Asked about the act passed by Congress last July, Mr. Kidwell said it was excellent in its provisions and purposes, but unfortunately there was no appropriation made to implement it, which in effect nullifies it. Questioned as to local mental hygiene clinics, as, for example, one for Monterey county, he said the probable cost, $22,000 anually, would be belanced by the human saving; it cost the Army $40,000 for each mental crackup during the recent war, and there were thousands of them which could have been prevented by adequate guidance and mental hygiene treatment during childhood and adolescence.

The weekly clinic for the public at Agnew and one at Stanford university in connection with the psychology department are about the only scientific mental hygiene guides available to the public.

Members of the Monterey Mental Hygiene society, with Eldon Covell, president, were in attendance in addition to the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Thor Hellum, president, conducted the meeting, and Mrs. Wilbur Wilkinson was in charge of the program.

John Sammons, C. S. Lecturer

John S. Sammons, C. S., of Chicago, Illinois, giving the Christian Science lecture here last Sunday said:

"Christian Science is based upon the Bible, the King James Version, which is the translation accepted and used in all Protestant churches. Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, quotes from the Bible 681 times in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and in each instance with appropriate explanation and comment. She refers to the Bible as 'the chart of life' (p. 24).

"Mrs. Eddy has given us a concise definition of God on page 465 of the textbook. There she answers the question 'What is God?' with the statement, 'God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.' She then goes on to tell us that these are synonymous terms, and says that 'they refer to one absolute God.' These synonymous terms all being equal to the same thing are necessarily equal to each other; hence, Mind is characterized by the substance of Spirit and Spirit expresses the conscious intelligence of Mind. The activity which is Life is the verity which is Truth and Truth gives to Life the power of changelessness. That which is true is true eternally, possessing inherently the capacity to retain its identity as Truth and successfully resist being anything else. Thus we have one God—infinite in His nature, universal in His being, changeless in His love. An understanding of God is fundamental to your understanding and demonstration of Christian Science.

JEAN VARDA SPEAKER

Mr. Jean Varda, the popular Monterey painter, has consented to address Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte's class in current literature on the subject of The Creative Spirit, on Tuesday evening, January 28, at 7:30, in room 11 of Sunset School. The public is invited.

Have You Read . . . ?

While a sympathetic teacher can do much for him, the time of association must, of necessity, be limited, and suggestion books fill a real need. One of the newest of these is Ernest W. Watson's "Outdoor Sketching."

Watson, limiting his discussion chiefly to black-and-white (pencil, wash, ink), presents comprehensive analyses of various subjects, in some cases accompanying his discourse with reproductions of photographs of the scene under consideration. Scattered through the text or gathered into separate chapters are various comments on pencils, papers, composition, etc. One point the author emphasizes is that each individual has latent preferences for materials or manner of working, one being well-advised to discover these by trial and act accordingly. For outdoor pencil and pen work, he recommends that the beginner confine himself to relatively small sketches and he gives examples of the actual sizes he has in mind. Supplementing the author's own illustrations are reproductions of sketches and studies by a score of other artists, past and present, showing a variety of styles well worth the student's careful examination. After exposing oneself to the illustrations in this book, it should be hard to sit in one's chair and listen to the radio—outdoors is calling; pencil and paper are at hand. Let's go!

While we are on the subject, it might be well to mention a number of earlier books of distinct practical value, especially for the novice who must work largely alone. Arthur L. Guptill's series has many helpful suggestions: Sketching as a Hobby, Freehand Drawing Self-Taught, Drawing with Pen and Ink, Color in Sketching and Rendering, Sketching and Rendering in Pencil, and Pen Drawing. Watson, likewise, had an earlier book on Pencil Drawing.

If one wishes to portray people, it would probably be hard to find a more inspiring and practical work than Roger Vernam's Drawing People for Fun, while for anatomical studies the most useful book to come to my attention is Andrew Loomis' Figure Drawing for All It's Worth. Likewise very helpful is the same author's Fun With a Pencil.

STORM

Old Man Weather can be mighty tough on telephone lines, especially in the High Sierras and Cascades where snow often piles high enough to cover poles completely and ice builds up several inches thick on wires. But when a major break occurs, crews of telephone workers swing into action fast . . . and with some rather ingenious equipment.

A snoplane like this one, powered by an airplane motor and propellor, can carry two men and considerable material on trails which would be impossible for trucks. Other expert mountaineer workmen speed to the break on snowshoes and skis. As a special safeguard against sudden storms, well-equipped shelter huts have been built along mountain lines.

Enough men rush to the job to keep repair work going without stop . . . in the meantime, calls are immediately rerouted whenever possible. And sooner than you might imagine, the damaged lines are in use again. For here, as in everything we're now doing to grow with the West, telephone people work with a splendid spirit of service and teamwork . . . and always with you in mind.

An ever-improving telephone service at the least cost consistent with good wages and working conditions for our employees and a reasonable return to the thousands of people who have invested in the business.

COME HOME, TRAVELLER
by Claude Kinnoull
COME HOME, TRAVELLER is the story of a great, unselfish, yet destructive love. It contains, says Kate O'Brien, "the unchanging philosophy of the Catholic Church and applies it to one human error. The author's people are deeply understood . . the story she tells is a pure and uplifting tragedy" 2.75

MY PAST WAS AN EVIL RIVER
by George Miller
MY PAST WAS AN EVIL RIVER is a novel of the American occupation of Germany. In its pages George Miller portrays with pitiless accuracy the irresponsible traits of some American GIs and bares the weaknesses of men who have known both the terrors of combat and the slow decay of boredom. It is unsparingly honest and exciting, frequently hitting hard where it hurts most. 2.50

IN THE HANDS OF THE SENECAS
by Walter D. Edmonds author of DRUMS ALONG THE MOHAWK
It is a story of Indians—real Indians who vary as all human beings—Indians who are impersonally cruel, simple and friendly, wise, brutal, sly, kind, proud, self-effacing, laughter-loving. It is a story of a woman's steadfastness in the face not only of mortal danger but of the loss of all that has given her pride and confidence in living. 2.50

THE JOURNALS AND LETTERS OF THE LITTLE LOCKSMITH
by Katharine Butler Hathaway
1943 saw the publication of one of the finest books of the century, THE LITTLE LOCKSMITH by Katharine Butler Hathaway. It was a Book-of-the-Month Club choice and received the very highest critical acclaim. The author died on Christmas Eve, 1942, not wholly unaware of her book's possible success because portions of it had appeared in three installments in the Atlantic Monthly before she died. After the publication of THE LITTLE LOCKSMITH the publishers and Warren H. Butler, the author's brother and literary executor, immediately started editing her journals and many sided correspondence and the result is a book which should delight the thousands of readers who found THE LITTLE LOCKSMITH such a rewarding work. 3.75

Peggy Mathiot Wed

News of the marriage of Katherine Parker Mathiot and Le Roy William McQuerry last Saturday, came as a surprise to their many friends in this area. The ceremony took place at St. Clements Episcopal Church, Berkeley, at 2 o'clock, the Reverend Henry J. Thomas officiating. The bride wore a light gray tailored suit, small flower hat and a corsage of orchids. Her only attendant was Miss Juanita Jenkins. Mr. McQuerry's best man was Robert H. Gerstlemann of Oakland. Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fletcher at 870 Sunnyhills Road. Peggy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl D. Mathiot of Rancho Carmelo, Carmel Valley. After her graduation at Monterey High School she entered Mills College, graduating with the class of '42, and then took a special course in physiotherapy at Stanford University. She served with the U. S. Army in the 101st General Hospital in England, France and Germany, and after her release from the army has been working in the Oakland Veterans Hospital. Peggy is an expert horsewoman, owning and breaking her colts.

Mr. McQuerry is the son of Mrs. Nathan Dove of Palmdale, California. He left college to join the army and served three and a half years in Europe and North Africa.

Women Voters

The League of Women Voters study section on the Central Valley Project is meeting this afternoon at 2:30 at La Ribera hotel lobby under the leadership of Mrs. Perry Newberry. Persons other than members who are interested in the subject may join the group. The March general meeting of the League will feature a debate and discussion on this subject.

Executive committee of the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters last week voted unanimous support of the Carmel school bond election. They also voted to institute a legislative workshop beginning in February, meeting twice a month to keep in touch with the actions of the law-making bodies, state and national. Mrs. Frances Ballard will head the group. A retired lawyer, Mrs. Ballard came from Philadelphia to live in Carmel.

Ina's Birthday

Little Ina Adams was eight years old January 14, and her mother gave her a party. It was a long and tedious afternoon before school was out, and the children waited with tantalizing little packages in their desks, which kept Ina's mind off her lessons. As soon as they got out of school they ran to the Floyd Adams house on Torres, and Ina received the gifts. They played games until the big moment arrived when Mrs. Adams called them in for refreshments. There was a big beautiful cake, blazing with eight candles, and after Ina had blown out the lights, they all fell to and demolished the cake and ice cream. Ina's guests were Margo Sloan, Geraldine Hotswood, Douglas Spangel, Dick Ricketson, Elizabeth Snite, Mary Ann Knox, Robert Seipel, Michael Koroslev, Carol Goodrich, and Gary Appleton.

Wayfarer Circles

The combined North and South Circles of the Church of the Wayfarer met Tuesday afternoon in the social room of the church. They voted to continue Miss Olive Swezy, chairman of the South group, to head the combined Circle, a vice-chairman to be chosen from the North group. Mrs. Leigh Mudge gave the devotions, Mrs. Ada McGee reported on the recent United Council of Church Women's conference in Oakland, and also gave the history of the founding of the Lea Memorial Home for unfortunate people in Calcutta, India. Miss L. Lucile Turner gave a brief conclusion to the fall study of India. A social hour with tea and cookies served by the North Circle concluded the afternoon.

Regional Symphony

Last Sunday afternoon a meeting and tea were held at the High School to further plans for the Regional Symphony. Peter Ferrante, presiding, brought before the group the problems facing the organization and recommended incorporation. A steering committee was appointed to meet with Mr. Ferrante and develop these plans. Mrs. Eben Whittlesey acted secretary protem, and Dr. Howard Clark, Fritz Wurtzmann, Leon Minear, Mrs. Grace Howden, Eben Whittlesey, Mrs. Elmarie Dykes and Mrs. Muriel Simpson were chosen to serve on the committee. Satisfaction was expressed over the orchestra which has already met for practice. There is a lot of brass, but more players are urged to dust off their violins and join the orchestra.

After the business meeting, tea was served by Mrs. Howard Elton Clark, with Mrs. Zenas Potter and Mrs. Louise Grigsby pouring. About fifty people were present.

Gardeners Hear Mrs. Bishop

Mrs. James D. Bishop, guest speaker at the Garden Section of the Womans' Club last Friday, gave a timely discussion of Decorative Ground covers. "Many people do not realize in planning a garden how greatly its charm may be enhanced by decorative ground covers for their flower beds," said Mrs. Bishop. She described the habits and appearance of more than two dozen of these plants. For shady spots under trees, she recommended dwarf veronica, ajuga (bugle plant) small ferns, sedums, helxine, (baby tear moss) and myrtle. The last two must be controlled or they will choke out the flowers. Among sun-loving covers are lineria, baby blue eyes, Virginia stocks, purple alyssum, ivy geranium and nemesia. The speaker gave detailed instructions concerning the propagation of plants by cuttings and seeds She emphasized that cuttings should not be longer than 4 inches. The slip should be cut at an angle and placed slanting in the soil to prevent rotting. When seeds are sowed in flats a paper should be placed over them when watered to prevent washing away. Tea was served while the members chatted around a friendly fire.

Back To The Farm

After they've seen Paree, it may be hard to get them back on the farm, but after a campaign in the South Pacific, Lieutenant Commander Jack Martin will soon be back to help his father (Roy Martin) farm up the valley. Jack and his wife, Beatrice, will continue to live in their home on Ridgewood Road, however. Recently he received a permanent citation for his Bronze Star Medal for "Meritorious service as Air Defense Officer of the USS Colorado in the Ryukyu Islands, where he completely reorganized and trained the depleted air defense personnel of his ship."

Wed At Mission

Before the altar banked with clusters of calla lilies and lit with tapers, Miss Mary Spayd and Joseph McCloskey were married Saturday morning at 8:15 at the old Mission, Father Eugene McDonald read the service which was followed by the nuptial mass. Miss Angie Machado was at the organ and Carl Bensberg was soloist. The bride chose for the occasion a pale pink dress and a smoke blue coat, her hat was a small black brim model with a breast of pink feathers across the front and black wings on the sides meeting in the back. Black accessories completed the costume and she carried a white satin prayer book with a white orchid. Robert MacNeur of Oakland gave the bride away and her attendant was Mrs. Helen Herlihy of Carmel, who wore a gown of pale blue sheer wool with a cocoa Adrian model coat and a small cocoa hat, tipped over one eye. Mrs. Herlihy wore a corsage of lady slipper orchids. Mr. McCloskey was attended by William Burk. A hundred guests witnessed the ceremony which was followed by a wedding breakfast given by Mr. and Mrs. MacNeur at the Country House.

Mary Spayd was a teacher in the Oakland schools and for many years has spent her vacations in Carmel. Three years ago she came to occupy permanently her home on Dolores between Second and Third. She has been active in the Altar Society of the Mission Church. Joseph McCloskey formerly lived in San Francisco and is now employed in the Dolores Grocery Store.

New Little Jones

Mr. and Mrs. Orville B. Jones Jr. are happy to announce the arrival of Gregory Stephen, born at the Community Hospital Wednesday, January 15, and weighing eight pounds and one ounce. Mrs. Jones, the mother, formerly lived in Los Angeles and met her husband at Oxnard when he was a Navy flyer stationed there. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stephens of Palo Alto. Orville Jones is known to nearly everyone in Carmel, where he attended Sunset School and was graduated from the High School's first class. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville B. Jones, and is associated with his father in the firm of Wilder and Jones. It is not often that a baby is so well equipped with grandparents. Besides maternal and paternal grandparents, young Gregory Stephen has two great-grandmothers, Mrs. Margaret Stephens of Butte, Montana, and Mrs. Barbara O'Connor of Carmel, both on the distaff side.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles May, Buzzy May, and Mr. and Mrs. William James left Saturday for Yosemite, where they took their first fling at skiing. They returned to Carmel on Sunday, all whole, and can hardly wait to get back on their skis again.

Big Sur—Big Time

Rancho Sierra Mar, home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Post in the Big Sur, was the scene of a delightful surprise party January 18, the birthday of their daughter, Mary Post Crumpley. It was a gathering of friends and neighbors in best tradition of the old Big Sur. From Carmel and the Peninsula, faraway Michigan and from the Big Sur area came 40 friends to sing "happy birthday" and gather around the large horseshoe shaped table, decorated with early daffodils, narcissus and snowdrops.

There was Big Sur music, played on accordian and guitar. Barbecued chickens, broiled over oak coals basted with a sauce from an old family recipe; and a four foot square birthday cake, candle-lighted, added to the pleasure of a memorable evening.

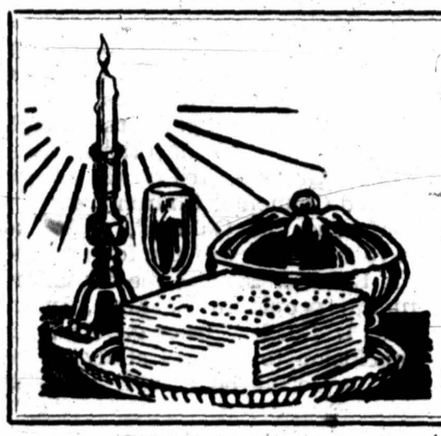

At one end of the long table was Mr. Joseph Post, 85-year-old head of the Post family, speaking softly of the days when he was a little boy in the Big Sur and grizzly bear were much more often seen than neighbors.

At the other honor place sat his granddaughter, Mary. Guests talked of the good old days, of the good new ones, when road and telephone could bring surprise party guests from sixty miles away in a couple of hours.

Among those enjoying the party were Mr. Joseph Post, Mr. and Mrs. William Post, their son and daughter, Billy and Mary; Mrs. Frank Post, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Jager, Mr. Cal Callaway, Joe Siller, Sam Hopkins, F. L. Winkie, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trotter, their children, Sandra, Richard and Cathy, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trotter with their children, Sammy and Jeanette, Mr. and Mrs. Harrydick Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Zeitfuch, Mrs. Albert Clark and her three sons, Craig, Guy and Rodney, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meyrose, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Meyrose, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Meyrose and Mrs. Merle Moore.

FORTIER'S on Ocean Avenue has some really tantalizing valentines, the kind you unfold interminably, revealing a message piecemeal at each stage. Then there's the valentine in a valentine in a valentine, eight valentines inside of one, to send a piquant message and stir the recipient's curiosity no little. For the gentle minded there are valentines of ruffled lace and plump red hearts, but you can find one for any taste among the Hallmark cards in FORTIER'S.

With a snip here and a seam there you can make a dress in the shortest possible time using PUTNAM AND RAGGETT'S tubular knit jersey. This jersey, a Cohama fabric, comes in solid colors in pure wool and also in an exquisitely soft wool and rayon blended with fur to make material soft as eiderdown. The colors are beautiful and suitable for any season in Carmel.

Whether it's a chair to be caned, a lamp base to be soldered, a kettle to be mended, a chest to be refinished or a house sign designed and painted, Mr. Paul Hill of PAUL'S SHOP on Eighth, between San Carlos and Dolores, will do the job for you expertly and inexpensively. Mr. Hill has been about Carmel since buckboard days, and you'll find him in his shop every day to do any kind of household repairing.

GUMP'S on Dolores has new highball and old-fashioned glasses made by Tiffin in a simple and solid design which looks attractive and durable. The glasses have heavy rounded bottoms which ought to keep them upright under trying circumstances. There's a group of shot glasses to match, decorated with hand-painted designs of game birds. GUMP'S has all bar necessities, including decanters, shakers and mixers.

In THE ARTIST'S WORKSHOP on Ocean Avenue opposite the Pine Inn look for the brilliantly colorful chests painted by Phil Nesbitt to keep wood, linen, toys and other impedimenta safely out of the way. Barbara Lachmund's hand woven, stencilled and block printed fabrics are particularly lovely, and Phil's lamps and pictures make the shop as bright as the sun outside.

For a quick efficient four day cleaning and pressing service call 411, THE VILLAGE CLEANER on Ocean, between San Carlos and Mission. THE VILLAGE CLEANER will call for and deliver your cleaning any day except Saturday. The shop has just installed some fancy green and silver pressing equipment, too, in order to make their already good work even better.

The Sweet Treet candy boxes from THE HOUSE OF HANSEL and GRETEL on Ocean Avenue north of San Carlos have a delicate fairy tale air about them with a gnarled witch and a gnarled oak and a toothsome little scalloped house, like the front of THE HANSEL AND GRETEL shop, and two eager children about to nibble while sugar plums and candy canes rain from the sky. These charming boxes will be filled at the shop with whatever delicacy you wish—regular chocolates or the wonderful little miniatures.

At HILLYER'S COFFEE SHOP on San Carlos south of Ocean breakfast begins at seven and at .30 for hotcakes. For .50 you can have eggs and hotcakes and for .75 eggs and bacon or sausage or hom. HILLYER'S sea food meals are making a name for themselves. Their Willipa Bay Oysters and crisp sweet Jumbo Shrimp deserve a wide and appreciative audience.

Ultra-violet rays to stir bodily chemicals into producing Vitamin D and Infra-red rays to produce beneficial heat come from the new Sperti Sun Lamps in THE McDONALD REFRIGERATION CO. on Fremont Street in Monterey. In addition to enjoying the benefits of Vitamin D and penetrating heat to cure simple muscular aches and pains, you will develop a beautifully even sun tan. The small model Sperti Sun Lamp can be hung up anywhere, and it folds into a neat compact case for storage. There's also a larger standard model. Each lamp comes equipped with tested sun goggles. THE McDONALD REFRIGERATION CO. also has a new shipment of Casco electric heating pads at prices beginning at $5.40.

Nylons and moreover a choice of nylons are offered you in THE STOCKING SHOP up in the Golden Bough Court on Ocean Avenue. THE STOCKING SHOP, devoted to garbing feminine legs as appropriately and beautifully as possible has nylons in sheer and semi-sheer weights and in varying leg lengths and there's a wide range of shades to choose from. The shop will have other things—you'll find famous worth perfumes and toilet waters there now—but stockings are the main issue.

U. S. O. Awards Dinner

Mrs. Hugh Dormody, awards chairman of the Monterey Peninsula U. S. O. advisory council, announces that invitations have been issued for a supper party to be given at the El Estero U. S. O. building on Thursday evening, January 30, in honor of the women who have devoted from 100 to 5,000 hours of their time during the important war years to U. S. O. work. This work includes not only hostessing but the many services which contribute to making the U. S. O. a "home away from home." Invitations will also go to representatives of the various clubs and organizations which have so faithfully co-operated.

About 150 will be entertained at supper. Awards and U. S. O. pins will then be presented. Mr. Edward W. Cochrane, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula U. S. O. advisory council, will give the address of the evening. Mrs. Charles C. Shepard Jr., awards assistant chairman, is in charge of the supper. Mrs. H. J. Leppert will arrange the tables and flowers and Miss Ruth Bangs, with the help of the Junior Hostesses, will attend to the serving. All members of the women's steering committee of the U. S. O. are giving much of their time to making the party a success.

Hosts for the evening will be the members of the Monterey Peninsula U. S. O. advisory council.

Astronomers Here

Visitors to Carmel over last weekend, included Misses Virginia vanden Noort and Betty Boutelle, of the staff of Lick Observatory at Mount Hamilton. Miss vanden Noort, who is assistant to Hamilton M. Jeffers, senior astronomer, will leave her post early in February, to become the bride of David Stevens, of Millrose, Mass. Miss Boutelle is the assistant to Ferdinand J. Neubauer, associate astronomer and librarian at Lick Observatory.

Author! Author!

Countess Claude Kinnoull, Torres street, Carmel, whose first novel "Come Home, Traveller" is just off the press, has lived here since 1941. A world traveller and explorer, she also possesses remarkable versatility as a talented painter, sculptor and journalist. She is well known in local art circles for her portraits of Robinson Jeffers, Noel Sullivan, Susan Porter, Marjory Warren, Helen Collins and Sybil Fearnley. The countess is being given a whirl this week by admirers and friends to honor the launching of her book. Yesterday afternoon Miss Emily Griffin of the Village Book Shop had a display of the "Traveller" and the author was there autographing copies. Many dropped in to meet Countess Kinnoull and chat around the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Roberts, old friends of the Countess, will have a sherry party in her honor at their home, Santa Lucia and Casanova, this afternoon. Friends will drop in to offer congratulations

Carmel Book Sellers, Mission and Fifth, have captured the celebrity for Sunday afternoon, January 26, when the second of their "Author's Afternoons" will be held. Tea will be served beginning at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Elsa Martinez and Mrs. Ellis Roberts will preside over the tea table with a unique decor which involves, it is rumored, an ancient custom of using Roman candles to celebrate the publication of a first book. One of Countess Kinnoull's paintings "The Girl in a Green Shawl," will be on exhibit in the main salon. John Harley and Warren Wright extend a hearty invitation to all those interested in art and literature to attend the affair. The countess will again autograph copies of her book.

Poet Here

Dr. E. Leigh Mudge, whose home is in New York State, is spending the winter in Carmel in one of the Etta Paul cottages. He is the author of a recently published volume of verse called God in Gardens, Poems on the Holy World. The book can be found at the Carmel Library.

His daughter, Pauline Mudge, also a writer, sold a scenario to the movies not long ago, and works at the Carmel Craft Shop.

Girl Scout News

Last Friday afternoon at the Girl Scouts meeting, a new record player was presented to the organization by the American Women's Volunteer Service. The girls would appreciate donations of records.

Troop No. 20 is in need of a co-leader, and a call is being sent out for any mother who can help out on Wednesday afternoons to phone Mrs. C. J. Ryland, Carmel 404.

Queen For A Day

Mrs. R. W. Musgrave celebrated her 86th birthday last Saturday. Her natal day was January 14 but her daughter, Mrs. Marjory McCauslin, who teaches at Sunset School, chose Saturday for the party. Mrs. Musgrave, alert and smiling, seated before a glowing fire, received congratulations and homage from her friends, who came bearing gifts for this special occasion. A number of the guests had formerly lived in her old home, Hanford, California, where her late husband was a well-loved physician. There was a birthday cake with candles, and a most elaborate tea for an 86th birthday comes only once in a life time and then only if one is lucky. Invited were Mrs. J. O. Hickman, Mrs. Frank McClain Sr., Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, Mrs. Allan Carter, Mrs. Frank Farrar, Mrs. John Wilhoit, Miss Blanch O'Neale and Miss Harriet Norman.

Waders For Dennis Wayne

There is another fisherman in the Ivan Kelsey family. He arrived at 8:48 p. m. Wednesday night at the Monterey hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Antrim. His mother is the former Noreen Kelsey and she will have to put up a fight to keep his Grandpa Ivan and his Uncle Jimmy from putting waders instead of booties on him. He's to be called Dennis Wayne and weighs seven pounds, nine ounces.

M.A.C. To Present The Dexters In Concert Feb. 2

The Musical Art Club will present its first concert of the 1947 season at the Carmel Art Gallery on Sunday evening, February 2, at eight p. m. The program will consist of a recital for cello and piano by Mr. Benning Dexter, pianist, and Betty Barbour Dexter, violoncellist. Mr. and Mrs. Dexter are both members of the Music Department Faculty of the San Jose State Teachers College. They were fellowship students at the Juillard School of Music, New York, from 1934 to 1939. Their musical careers have followed parallel lines since that time, as both have appeared in concert in many California cities as well as in New York. They have also been heard on radio broadcasts on the N.B.C. network. The artists have many friends among the members of the club, who are familiar with the high quality of their musical achievement.

Persons interested in becoming members of the club during the coming year are cordially invited to attend the concert. Membership in the club is on a calendar year basis, entitling the member to attend seven or eight concerts which are usually held monthly except during the summer, and the annual Christmas party of the club. Those in Carmel desiring further information regarding membership are urged to get in touch with Mrs. Edith Postelwaite, telephone 1987-J.

Details of the program will be announced in next week's issue of The Carmel Pine Cone.

zoning petitions, Fred Warren's and J. O. Handley's request for reclassification of property at Mission and 4th from the business to the industrial zone, and Robert Harnisch's and Percy Parkes' request for reclassification of lots at Lincoln and Ocean from residential to business zone.

Informed of their appointment and asked for quotes, P. A. McCreery, Clara Kellogg and Ernest Bixler said they were glad to serve because they felt that the time had come when such a commission was vitally needed in the community. Bert Heron said he had no statement to make.

"I made a statement once when I was mayor and they were talking about putting in sidewalks. I said, 'Let's not have tiresome old gray sidewalks. Let's have color.' Somebody said, 'What color?' I said, 'pink — green — yellow—purple—any color—' and then when they quoted me they stopped at 'pink'—'Bert Heron wants pink sidewalks for Carmel!' "

The Pine Cone promised not to misquote him.

which Cole is believed implicated in taking from the five stripped cars found in the last few months in such isolated areas as Jack's Peak, Bixby Creek, and a eucalyptus grove near Seaside. Three of the cars were stolen in Carmel. All had been stripped of wheels, tires, heaters, bumpers, radios, carburetors and other such movable equipment.

Meanwhile, Leon Sutton of Del Monte Grove, arrested earlier this week when he was caught attempting to sell tires stolen from a Chevrolet owned by Horace Ferrante of Carmel, plead guilty when he appeared before the Monterey Police Court Tuesday, but has not yet been sentenced. He is believed to have been working with Arthur Cole, furnishing him with stolen or out of date license plates for the stolen cars, and selling some of the parts.

The stolen car ring has allegedly been operating since last November, and is believed to have accounted for a Packard, a Pontiac and three Chevrolet's. Cole's wife is named as his accomplice on the warrant out for his arrest. Authorities have been warned that he is armed with a rifle and a shotgun.
